IN THE NORTH!

EXPORTERS OF MURMANSK REGION

The Murmansk region is located in the north-west of Russia. In the south it borders on Karelia, in the west on Finland, in the northwest on Norway. It is washed by the White and Barents Seas.

Murmansk, the largest ice-free port in Russia, is located beyond the Arctic Circle and serves as a major base for cargo shipment to the areas of Far North, the Arctic and far abroad.

Its border location, extensive export opportunities and well-developed transportation infrastructure create favorable conditions for the expansion of international cooperation.

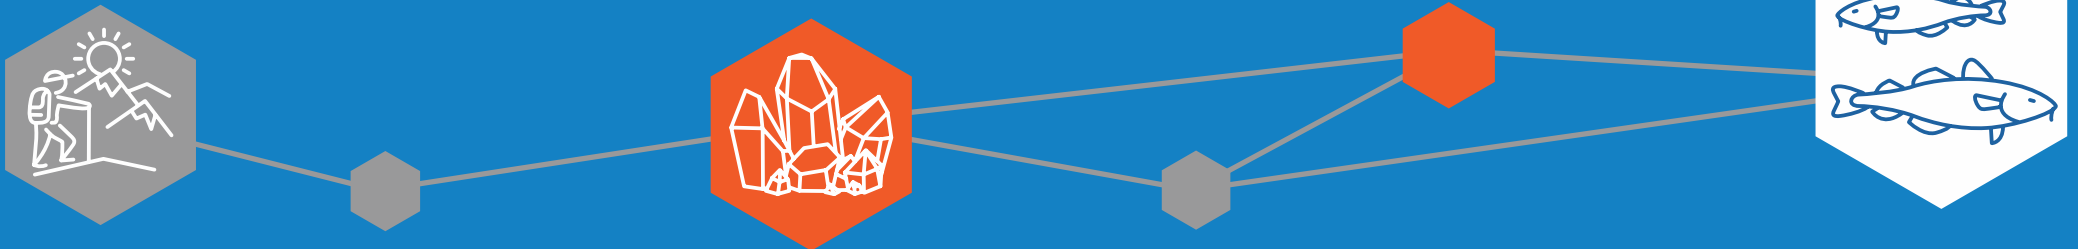

EXPORTERS OF MURMANSK REGION

Among the constituent entities of the Russian Federation that make up the North-Western Federal District, the Murmansk region has traditionally been among the top five leaders in exports and trade turnover. The region is actively engaged in foreign trade, with export deliveries reaching more than 50 countries.

In addition to its industrial potential, the polar region is famous for its diverse natural resources. The Murmansk region is rich in fish, northern berries, sea urchins and kelp.

Moreover, the region attracts foreign tourists with aurora borealis, ski slopes, nature and Arctic cuisine.
